I intended to move on to another author but opening up the Carver anthology last night made me want to re-read one of the stories that sticks in my mind, "Nobody Said Anything". I'm going to focus on the ending since it's one of my favorites and exemplifies what I love about a well-written short story.

Hemingway's focus on a plain description of the everyday observable, is a deliberate attempt to avoid the abstract and unknown. Everyday objects are imbued with their own significance. Hemingway crafted a prose self-consciously devoid of symbolism. Writing about his 1952 novel The Old Man and The Sea he said "There isn't any symbolism. The sea is the sea."
